"DR. HENDERSON" IN JAIL.

TRE WAVERLY PEOPLE ARE INDIG. NANT AGAINST HER,

In Consequence of Which the Mayor Asks that the Woman be Kept in Petersburg. Some Additional Facts About Her.

PETERSBURG, VA., March 24.-Special. -Constable Grannmar arrived here last night on the midnight train from Norfolk, bringing with him a letter from Mayor B. W. L. Holt, of Waverly, to Chief of Police Perkinson, in which he said: "I do not think it would be advisable to bring Dr. Henderson down to Waverly at present, as the citizens of our usually quiet village are wrought up to fever heat against her, and I could not prevent violence being done to her, and ask that you keep her in jail in your city until the excitement cools down."

In accordance with the request of Mayor Holt the woman was committed to jail this morning. The particulars of the crime of which the stranger is charged have already been given in this correspondence. Among other statements made by Dr. Henderson was one to the effect that she was from Richmond, and came that she was from Richmond, and came to waverly to attend a patient, whose name she declined to give. She also said that she was the trusted assistant of a distinguished physician of Richmond and was always sent to look after such cases as he himself was unable to at-

Dr. Henderson, as she calls herself, visited several of the stores here yesterday afternoon before being arrested. She told one of our merchants that she had just arrived here with a party of friends on a steam launch, which was moored at the wharf. He to ladies. Whereupon the woman remarked, "that is right," and walked out. It is said that this strange woman has been seen both in Richmond and Manchester.

WOOD'S DELINQUENCIES,

He Arrives in Gordonsville and is (harged With Three Crimes Within 24 Hours.

GORDONSVILLE, VA., March 21.-Speclai.-A man of about thirty-five years of age was caught after a hard chase about a mile below here this morning. The fellow is evidently a bardened criminal, as since his arrival here yesterday from Staunton he has been charged with three different infractions of the law, namely, forgery, larceny, and obtaining goods un-der false pretences. Soon after his arrival in town he called Woods had a little money, and pro-ceeded to get drunk. After his money gave out he tried again to dispose of the mechanic's tool, and succeeded in bor-menante's tool, and succeeded in borrowing twenty-five cents from E. C. Smith, a saloon keeper.

He got tired, and, it is charged, forged Mr. Martin's name to a note addressed to Mrs. Harrison, who keeps a boarding-house, which stated that Mr. Martin would be responsible for his beard. be responsible for his board. Woods had not been in his room for more than fif-teen minutes, it is said, before he had broken open a trunk which belonged to Mr. Roy, a boarder in the house. Before he could get away with any of its contents the trunk was taken from the room. Woods then went to sleep, or rather kept quiet until just about an hour before dawn, when he started to prowl around the house. He went upstairs in his stock-ing feet, and by the noise in turning over a chair awakened a Mr. Smith. Smith asked him what he wanted, and the fellow replied, "Water." turned and went back down stairs and left the house.

Yesterday morning a report of the facts was made to Constable Balley by Mr. Martin, and Balley immediately started out to catch him. He saw Woods board the freight train which passes here on its way to Richmond at 7:30 o'clock, and got on with him. When the train stopped Bailey made the arrest and walked his risoner back to town.

There were only ladies in Mrs. Harrison's house, and they were in a state of perturbation all night long. Woods also tried to break in the room next to his, which was occupied by the Misses Harrison, but they had piled three trunks, one son, but they had piled three trunks, one on the other, against the door, so that the marauder could not get by them.

The prisoner is evidently a dangerous jall-bird. He unblushingly acknowledges all of his crimes. He is about five feet eight inches tall, has sandy hair, and a graylsh moustache. A description of him will be sent to other places in the State, as he is probably wanted for other offences.

An Interesting Insurance Case at Roanoke. The Exposition

ROANOKE, VA., March 24.-Special.-It is given out from Norfolk and Western headquarters here that the traffic of the road for this month is considerably larger than it was in March, 1893. There is a slight decline of passenger traffic as compared with this month of last year.

The case of A. A. Leary against the Niagard Fire Insurance Company is still in progress. Much of the testimony tends

Dr. Mallett, of the University of Virginia, has testified that the explosion in the Hotel Brunswick during the fire on the morning of March 6, 1830, which blew out the side-walls and crippled Fireman C. Kenellis, was not caused by liquors, but he declined to say what, in his opinion, caused it. Leary claims between $7,000 and $8,000 insurance, but the evidence shows that he offered just before the fire to sell out for $4,500. BRISTOL, TENN., March 21.-Special. Henry Seagraves, thirty-five years old, who lives south of the town, was found west of the city horribly beaten. He says he came to the city yesterday enquiring for a farm to rent. The boys by the name of Shaver told him they knew of a place west of the city, and would take him. They were drinking heavily when they started. The political temperance people, the Prohibitionists, hoped that he would violently aftack the municipal government, which be did not. As a matter of fact, Mr. Moody pitched into the church with much more severity than he did into the politicians and liquor-sellers. So far as making votes for the Prohibition party goes, these meetings will have no influence whatever.
